Roberts Law Office Announces Opening

Attorney D. Tyler Roberts Opens Law Practice In Lexington

LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY (November 8, 2012) – Today, D. Tyler Roberts, an attorney licensed by the Supreme Court of Kentucky, announced the opening of his solo legal practice under the name Roberts Law Office, PLLC.

“It is my great pleasure to return to Lexington and serve the people, small businesses, and non-profit organizations of Lexington,” said Roberts.

Mr. Roberts is a native of Shelby County, Kentucky and a graduate of the University of Kentucky. He attended law school at the University of Mississippi and has spent the past year in Orlando, Florida working in the insurance, real estate, and financial services industries. He has founded and co-founded several small businesses in the technology sector and a non-profit organization, the Self-Regulatory Organization for Independent Investment Advisers, Inc. (SROIIA), vying to become the regulatory body of the financial advisory profession.

“I want to use my experiences and legal education in small business and non-profit services to assist others in achieving their entrepreneurial and philanthropic endeavors,” said Roberts. “Lexington has been recognized as one of the best cities in which to start a business and offers a terrific support system through its universities, chamber of commerce, and government.”

Roberts Law Office provides services to small businesses and non-profit organizations such as formation, governance, financing, contract drafting, employment law, and more. Additionally, Roberts Law Office will provide representation for creditors in bankruptcy proceedings, landlords in landlord-tenant disputes, and a variety of individual legal services.

Roberts Law Office is located in the historic Beck House at 209 East High Street, Lexington, Kentucky 40507.

The mission of Roberts Law Office is to provide the people of Kentucky with zealous legal advocacy and to support the Commonwealth's small business and non-profit communities with exceptional legal guidance.
